Some of the Soviet troops quartered in the former 5th kifle kegt Larracks, Timisoara (k 16/T 91), left the town toward Sannicolaul Mare (Y 7/T 55) between 7 and 10 April 1950. The march column consisted of trucks carrying troops and mounted rocket launchers, some with the

(the last two with mounted rocket launchers). The Doviet troops who remained in the barracks arrived in Timisoara on 2 april 1950.

- Soviet troops simultaneously left the Transylvanian Larracks, heading in the same direction. They were equipped with "heavy artillery tanks with toothed wheels in line?
- Boviet troops left the Arad (R 16/U 06) fortress toward Curtici (R 16/U 17) on 9 April 1950, according to an Arad informant. Their

Comment:

The troops who left Timisoara were believed to have been ones who arrived there in Lovember 1949.

a. According to their motor vehicle numbers and their armament, the troops who left the former 5th Aifle kegt barracks were probably the rocket launcher units which were observed to move into the barracks on 19 Bovember 1949 *

The troops who moved into the barracks on 2 April 1950  were apparently still there on 10 April 1950 (trucks with coupled AA guns and other artillery pieces had been seen parked in the barrack yard).

b. The units which left the Timisoara Transylvanian Earracks (probably SP artillery units) and the troops who departed from Arad had been observed in the towns in December 1949 and March 1950.*

It is considered possible that the units left their quarters for field exercises or for troop training grounds, i.e., about the time when troops in the Soviet Zones of Germany and Austria started moving to troop training grounds.
